

PORTFOLIO SIMULATION, 2026

Verification Log

Google Ads Audit and Optimization Case Study

What this log is for

This is a short record of how the Google Ads audit and optimization case study was checked before it was finished. It walks through where each number came from, how each claim was labeled, and what was deliberately left out because it was not in the source material. The goal is to make it easy for anyone reading the case study, including a hiring manager, to trust that nothing in it was made up.

Source material

The case study is based on a single piece of source material, a transcript of a Google Ads audit video covering a Search and Demand Generation account for an ecommerce hair coloring shampoo brand sold in Pakistan. The transcript is educational and publicly available. The person who built this case study did not manage the account, run the original audit, or work with the brand. That is stated plainly in the case study itself, on the cover page and again on the final page.

Number by number check

Every figure that appears in the case study is listed below, along with where it came from and whether it was confirmed against the source transcript.

Figure	Where it came from	Status
December spend, about PKR 765K, conversions about 1.24K, CPA about PKR 616	Source transcript	Confirmed
February spend, about PKR 2.52M, conversions about 1.55K, CPA about PKR 1,600	Source transcript	Confirmed
March spend, about PKR 2.7M, conversions about 2.51K, CPA about PKR 1,100	Source transcript	Confirmed
April spend, about PKR 1.5M, conversions about 1.52K, CPA about PKR 758	Source transcript	Confirmed
November spend, about PKR 1.6M, conversions about 1.7K, CPA about PKR 903	Source transcript	Confirmed
Search CPA, about PKR 160	Source transcript	Confirmed

Figure	Where it came from	Status
Demand Generation CPA, about PKR 1,747, using Target CPA bidding	Source transcript	Confirmed
The 10.9 times comparison between Search and Demand Generation	Worked out from the two CPA figures above	Calculated, marked clearly as a calculated figure

What was left out on purpose

The source transcript does not include several figures that would normally appear in a full account review. Rather than filling those gaps with estimates, the case study marks them as data not available in source material. The following were not included anywhere in the document:

- Revenue and profit figures
- ROAS
- Click through rate and cost per click
- Conversion rate
- Customer demographics
- Specific city names and their individual performance
- Specific audience segment names and their individual performance
- Any actual result, saving, or improvement from applying the recommendations

How labels were used

Four labels appear throughout the case study, and each one was applied consistently so a reader always knows the source of a statement.

SOURCE OBSERVATION

Used for anything taken directly from the transcript, such as the monthly spend figures or the note that Demand Generation uses Target CPA bidding.

STRATEGIC RECOMMENDATION

Used for a suggested next step, such as tiering audiences by efficiency or validating tracking before increasing budget.

HYPOTHESIS

Used for CRO ideas, such as testing a stronger call to action, that have not been tested and are not guaranteed to work.

DATA NOT AVAILABLE IN SOURCE MATERIAL

Used whenever a figure could not be found in the transcript, so the reader is never left guessing whether a number is real or assumed.

Positioning check

The case study was reviewed to make sure it never implies the writer personally managed the account, ran the original audit, or generated any of the results discussed. It also avoids inventing work experience, client relationships, or testimonials. The disclaimer explaining this appears on the cover page and again on the closing page, worded plainly rather than buried in small print.

Writing check

The writing was reviewed for tone as well as accuracy. It avoids overstated claims, avoids promising outcomes that cannot be backed by the source material, and keeps a steady, professional voice from the first page to the last. Recommendations are framed as things worth testing or validating, not as guaranteed fixes.

Design and formatting check

The finished PDF was rendered and reviewed page by page. All 21 pages were checked for consistent headings, spacing, and page numbering, and for any text that might be cut off, overlapping, or otherwise hard to read.

Summary checklist

Check	Result
Every number in the case study can be traced back to the source transcript	Pass
No revenue, ROAS, profit, or conversion rate figures were invented	Pass
No specific city names or audience segment names were invented	Pass
Source observation, strategic recommendation, hypothesis, and data not available labels are used correctly	Pass
No claim of managing the account or generating real results	Pass
Disclaimer appears on the cover page and the closing page	Pass
Writing stays measured and avoids exaggerated claims	Pass

Check	Result
Page numbers, headings, and spacing are consistent across all 21 pages	Pass
No text is cut off or overlapping on any page	Pass

Sign off

This log confirms the case study was built and checked using only the information available in the source transcript, with clear labeling wherever a statement goes beyond a direct observation. It is meant to sit alongside the case study as a short, honest record of how it was put together, not as an additional marketing document.

Anyone reviewing the case study is welcome to check it against this log, line by line, and raise anything that does not hold up.

Reviewed by: _____

Date: _____